REDS BEATEN TWICE IN UN VOTES

Truman, Dewey Winding Up Present Tours, Head East After Speeches In Hoosier State

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16—President Truman drew his six-day political campaign through the Ohio Valley and Great Lakes States to a close today and headed back to Washington for a 36-hour pause between campaign tours.

The chief executive is due back in Washington this afternoon. He will leave again at 6:30 a. m. Monday for Miami, this time using the 300-mile-an-hour presidential plane, Independence.

Mr. Truman will address the American Legion convention in the South Florida metropolis Monday afternoon.

The election windup will see him making major appearances successively in Chicago, Cleveland, Boston, New York and Brooklyn on Oct. 28 and Oct. 29, in St. Louis and Kansas City.

The President will wind up his campaign on election eve with a 15-minute national broadcast speech from his home in Independence, Mo.

Yesterday, the chief executive stumped the state of Indiana, seeking its highly important 13 electoral votes.

He spoke in a half dozen towns during the day, drawing crowds that were described as among the greatest turnouts in state history.

In Indianapolis last night, the President told a cheering crowd of more than 25,000 jammed into the immense plaza before the gigantic World War Memorial, that a Republican President and Republican Congress will "take you headlong back down the road that led to the great depression of the 1930s."

He said that "Fire Chief

Dewey and his Republican firemen have been too busy playing a game of political checkers to put out the fire of inflation."

Meanwhile, the Republican presidential candidate, Gov.

Thomas Dewey, scheduled a full-dress stop in Rensselaer, Ind., for a "harmony" meeting with House Majority Leader Charles

A. Halleck, the man who was bypassed as Dewey's runningmate.

Dewey kept the foreign policy issue alive at St. Paul, Minn. Apparently referring to how in 1944 he kept the secret that America had broken Japan's top-secret code, Dewey told his audience:

"Four years ago the fateful choice fell to me to decide whether to expose to the American people some or any of the blunders and of the tragedies committed by our then national administration, in the course of the presidential campaign.

"I made the decision and it was all my own—that it was

Former Gov. Lausche Due For Talk Here Monday

Pickaway Countians Monday are to get their only scheduled glimpse of a major political candidate.

Former Gov. Frank Lausche, seeking the post now held by GOP Gov. Thomas Herbert, is to make an appearance on Pickaway courthouse steps at 10:15 a. m. and is to give a short address.

Lausche, who ignored the Democratic Party chieftains and still won the nomination hands-down at the May primary election, is making Circleville his first stop on a swing through the rural areas of the state next week.

His party Monday will include George D. Nye, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor.

LAUSCHE is to leave Circleville following his address here for Lancaster where he is expected at noon.

MADRID, Oct. 16—Representative J. Frank Wilson, (D) Tex., today described his five-man congressional committee visiting Spain as "most—if not all"—favorable to enlisting Spain as an ally.

Marshall Plans Check In Greece

PARIS, Oct. 16—Secretary of State Marshall left Paris by plane today for Athens, where he will receive a first-hand account of the Greek civil war.

Marshall will confer with Henry F. Grady, ambassador to Greece and Maj. Gen. James Van Fleet, U. S. military advisor to the Greek army.

They will supply Marshall with information which he will use in connection with the forthcoming UN discussion of the Greek question.

Egyptians Attack Jewish Convoy

TEL AVIV, Oct. 16—Full-scale warfare raged in Palestine today following an Egyptian army attack on a Jewish convoy.

At stake in the rapidly developing battle is control of the Negev area of Southern Palestine, center of a three-way political dispute.

There was general fear that the fighting heralded an end to the true ordered by the United Nations.

Israeli army planes unleashed bombing attacks on Gaza, seat of the Egyptian-sponsored Arab "government" for Palestine, and on Egyptian strongholds throughout the desert area.

At the same time Egyptian planes bombed and strafed Israeli convoys and isolated settlements.

Ground forces of the Haganah were locked in battle with the Egyptian troops at many points. Tel Aviv reports said that "thousands" are already involved in the fighting.

THE NEGEV, vast desert area of Southern Palestine, was originally awarded the Jews under the United Nations partition plan. But the late Count Folke Bernadotte recommended that it be allotted to Trans-Jordan.

Egypt has opposed Trans-Jordan's claim and has sponsored an Arab regime with headquarters at the coastal city of Gaza.

Other members of the Arab League have followed her lead, leaving Trans-Jordan virtually isolated in the Arab world.

Wallace Heads South Again

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Henry A. Wallace is scheduled to fly to Dalton, Ga., today from Chicago in his second invasion of the Deep South where he was egged and splattered with tomatoes several weeks ago.

The Progressive Party presidential candidate threw himself into the Cook County campaign last night with three speeches to aid local candidates on the third party ticket.

He attacked what he termed the "bipartisan political machine which is trying to fasten the dictatorial one-party system on the people of the United States."

HULLS ANSWER warned that political efforts to take credit for our foreign policy would inevitably inject politics into conduct of the policy. He said:

"I am moved to comment upon this statement not simply because it is incorrect. Governor Dewey can easily refresh his memory of what actually took place by rereading the newspapers of August and September, 1944.

The melancholy importance of Governor Dewey's statement is that it is only the latest of many statements in which extravagant claims for credit have been made for achievements which were the fruit of joint and patriotic effort by Remember Meatless, Eggless Days?

They're Still In Force--Officially

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Remember the furor last Fall and Winter over Meatless Tuesdays and Eggless Thursdays?

Well, if meat and bread appear on your dinner table seven days a week, you're still technically guilty of being a bad patriot.

Actually, all of these so-called "self-denial programs" are as out of date as last Fall's chapeau but a survey disclosed today that nobody has ever bothered to say so—officially.

bang about a year ago when the Citizens' Food Committee headed by Charles Luckman launched a variety of conservation programs, mostly on an on-your-own basis.

Poultryless Thursdays went into the discard—by public pronouncement—while Luckman was still at the helm. That was last December.

Soon after the first of the year, Eggless Days were abandoned, too.

The Agriculture Department took over the conservation program from Luckman's committee and on April 21 announced that there would be no more Meatless Tuesdays.

But, here's the gimmick—the department substituted a request that consumers continue to observe a meatless day each week—any day out of the seven.

That plea, so far as anybody knows, is still in full force and effect, although the average citizen probably hasn't given it a thought in months.

The same is true of Breadless Days. When the need for conservation began to fade, the patriotic fanfare faded too.

So the "Less" days were permitted to die a quiet, unannounced death, mourned only by the man who thought he saw a way to avoid buying expensive food-stuffs a couple of days a week.

The organization is the Pan-American group set up by the Bogota conference. Russia opposed inviting the secretary-general on the grounds that there was no provision for such a move in the charter.

On a second issue, that of endorsing Jan Papanek, the anti-Communist Czechoslovak delegate who was recalled by Prague, the Russians again suffered a setback.

The assembly's administrative committee recommended approval of Papanek, in spite of the fact that the Prague regime has denounced him as a traitor and demanded his extradition.

After a lively debate, the assembly voted 30 to six in favor of Papanek, with 13 abstentions.

political committee without debate.

The General Assembly was unexpectedly called into session today to clean up remaining items on its agenda.

Summoning of the plenary session resulted in postponement of a scheduled political committee meeting at which atomic control was to be discussed.

Russia offered strong opposition to Papenek, and instead called for a resumption of the AEC.

This Soviet tactic was rejected by the subcommittee, largely because it contained a Russian "kicker" — simultaneous outlawing of atomic weapons and establishment of international control.

With the atomic question temporarily replacing the Berlin deadlock at the UN, observers in Paris feel that the current session is producing a further isolation of the Russians in the world organization.

Yesterday's session of the Security Council, which saw the Soviet delegate, Andrei Vishinsky, flatly refuse to answer two vital questions on Berlin put to the Big Four by the neutral powers, has resulted in mounting annoyance with the Russians.

WITH THE Security Council adjourned until Tuesday, Western delegates are spending the weekend drawing up answers to the two questions asked by Council Chairman Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentina. They were:

1. What was the exact method by which the Berlin blockade was imposed and what is its present status?

2. What was the exact nature of the four-power Moscow agreement of Aug. 30, and why was it not implemented?

The U. S., Britain and France have signified their willingness to answer Bramuglia, but Vishinsky has rejected the question.

At yesterday's council meeting he reiterated the Russian stand that Berlin is outside the UN's jurisdiction and is solely a matter for the Big Four.

Observers feel that pending approval of the subcommittee's proposal on atomic energy by the full political committee, the way will be clear for a favorable vote in the General Assembly.

The subcommittee scheme stemmed from a Canadian resolution which deemed further atomic commission talks with the Soviets useless. Instead, it recommended a six-country private consultation on atomic energy as soon as possible.

Navy Probing Fire At Base

QUONSET, R. I., Oct. 16—Navy officials searched the ruins of a fire-destroyed repair shop at the Quonset Naval Air Station today to determine cause of a million dollar blaze late yesterday.

Naval intelligence and other federal investigators were reported seeking evidence of sabotage. Eight hundred civilian employees escaped when the fire broke out in the repair shop and spread quickly.

Twenty-one persons were injured while fighting the blaze. The shop was the chief repair base for U. S. naval carrier planes.

Anthony May, 48, also of Cleveland, suffered cuts and bruises on his limbs when he tried to pull Stadler from under the machine.

The six council members who requested the hearings were led by Saul Mills, council secretary-treasurer. Mills, in a telegram to Murray, said:

"We request that you, as pres-use of force to intimidate and

Murray replied:

"There has not been and will not be any molestation and use of force to intimidate anyone by the committee selected by me to conduct these hearings."

Russians Prefer Talk On A-Bomb

political committee without debate.

The General Assembly was unexpectedly called into session today to clean up remaining items on its agenda.

Summoning of the plenary session resulted in postponement of a scheduled political committee meeting at which atomic control was to be discussed.

Russia offered strong opposition to Papenek, and instead called for a resumption of the AEC.

This Soviet tactic was rejected by the subcommittee, largely because it contained a Russian "kicker" — simultaneous outlawing of atomic weapons and establishment of international control.

With the atomic question temporarily replacing the Berlin deadlock at the UN, observers in Paris feel that the current session is producing a further isolation of the Russians in the world organization.

Yesterday's session of the Security Council, which saw the Soviet delegate, Andrei Vishinsky, flatly refuse to answer two vital questions on Berlin put to the Big Four by the neutral powers, has resulted in mounting annoyance with the Russians.

With the Security Council adjourned until Tuesday, Western delegates are spending the weekend drawing up answers to the two questions asked by Council Chairman Juan A. Bramuglia of Argentina. They were:

1. What was the exact method by which the Berlin blockade was imposed and what is its present status?

2. What was the exact nature of the four-power Moscow agreement of Aug. 30, and why was it not implemented?

The U. S., Britain and France have signified their willingness to answer Bramuglia, but Vishinsky has rejected the queries.

At yesterday's council meeting he reiterated the Russian stand that Berlin is outside the UN's jurisdiction and is solely a matter for the Big Four.

Observers feel that pending approval of the subcommittee's proposal on atomic energy by the full political committee, the way will be clear for a favorable vote in the General Assembly.

The subcommittee scheme stemmed from a Canadian resolution which deemed further atomic commission talks with the Soviets useless. Instead, it recommended a six-country private consultation on atomic energy as soon as possible.

The youth was taken into custody Friday afternoon following a report from Ray W. Davis, of 120 Montclair avenue, that someone had entered his home early Friday and removed the currency from his wallet. Davis and his wife slept through the burglary.

Police said the bathroom window in the Davis home had been pried open and that fingerprints checked with those of the youth in custody.

The lad confessed the burglary late Friday, police said, but no charges had been pressed as of noon Saturday.

Police said they recovered all but about $20 of the loot, found in the lining of the lad's pants. The $20 had been spent in a local clothing store by the boy for a suit.

Guard Slayer To Get Chair

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16 — John Thomas, 34-year-old convicted slayer of two Ohio penitentiary guards, will die in the electric chair Feb. 4.

Thomas was sentenced in Franklin County criminal court yesterday when a jury returned a verdict of guilty without mercy after an hour and a half of deliberation.

Witnesses testified during his trial that Thomas went on a rampage in the prison and stabbed three guards with a butcher knife he grabbed in the kitchen.

The knife wounds proved fatal to 68-year-old Walter W. Zimmer and 54-year-old Samuel P. Cheshire.

Death Penalty To Be Asked

MEDINA, Oct. 16 — The death penalty will be asked for Clark Hill, 19, accused "love-potion" slayer of Jeanette Weimer, when he goes on trial Monday in the Medina County courthouse.

Hill pleaded innocent that he murdered the Weimer girl, who lived in Mogadore, a village east of Akron, last April 10 by leading a hose from his car exhaust to her unconscious body after giving her a sex stimulating drug.

Hill's attorneys have waived a jury trial but a venire will be ready in case a jury is demanded at the last moment, County Prosecutor William G. Batchelder reported.

The Sunday school orchestra has chosen appropriate musical numbers emphasizing Christian Home Sunday for Sunday services.

All classes, from nursery to and including senior high school are using the new curriculum which is the official teaching material adopted throughout all Presbyterian churches.

For his Christian Home Sunday message, Rev. Mr. Mitchell will preach on the subject, "Recipe For Christian Homes".

New Heat Plant Now Operating In Church Here

According to the pastor, the Rev. Donald E. Mitchell, the Presbyterian church is now being comfortably heated by the new furnaces, one furnace heating the sanctuary, the other the Sunday school and Bible study rooms.

The Sunday school orchestra has chosen appropriate musical numbers emphasizing Christian Home Sunday for Sunday services.

All classes, from nursery to and including senior high school are using the new curriculum which is the official teaching material adopted throughout all Presbyterian churches.

For his Christian Home Sunday message, Rev. Mr. Mitchell will preach on the subject, "Recipe For Christian Homes".

The choir will sing, "Great Is Thy Love" by Bohm, with the contralto solo part by Mrs. Arthur Wagar.

At the organ, Mrs. Theodore L. Huston will play "Daybreak" by Spinney, "A Claire de Lune" by Debussy, and "Processional" by Lindsey.

Japan To Get Own Boys' Town

TOKYO, Oct. 16—Japan soon will have its own Boy's Town.

It will be patterned after the world-famed Nebraska institution created by the late Father Edward Joseph Flanagan.

A three-year project to develop a Boy's Town that will house 1,000 youths from 16 to 28 years old will get underway Nov. 1 at Kakogawa, Hyogo prefecture.

The scheme is being sponsored jointly by the Tomioichi Suyari and the Hyogo prefectural authorities. The Catholic order of the Scheut Fathers has been asked to give moral and spiritual guidance to the boys.

Spurgeon Metzler and the evangelistic musicians, William and Edith Strehl, will have charge of the services.

An added feature will be the initial appearance of the newly formed 22-voice youth chorus, which will furnish music. Clarence Radcliffe is director with Mrs. Verneal Thomas accompanist.

In cooperation with a denominational emphasis of "Good Literature" day, each family will receive a copy of the Evangelical United Brethren monthly magazine, "Our Home."

At 6:30 p. m., Youth Fellowship meets in the Sunday school room with Patty Happeney leading the lesson study. Special guests will be evangelistic musicians, William and Edith Strehl, who will share in the program. All young people between the ages of 12 and 24 years are invited.

The last meeting of the two weeks mass evangelistic campaign will be Sunday at 7:30 p. m. At 7 p. m. the group will meet in the "Upper Room" for preaching.

Panels To Be Selected For Lutheran Unity Plan

FREMONT, Oct. 16—Committees will be appointed soon to carry out the far-reaching resolution on Lutheran unity adopted at the American Lutheran Church at its tenth biennial convention which closed here Thursday, Dr. Emmanuel Poppen, general president, announced following 250,000 as representing more adequately the church's needs. The lower figure, it was stated, is the basic minimum if retrenchment is to be avoided.

The figure represented an increase of $44,500 over the budget for 1948, of which less than half had been raised up to Oct. 1, officials said. A concentrated "catch up" drive is planned throughout the church for mid-November.

The items of increase in the budget were $32,000 for minimum pensions, $7,500 for participation in all-Lutheran evangelism campaign, and $5,000 for a study which the convention authorized on the matter of incorporation. The latter action grew out of a proposal for internal reorganization of the church.

A new plan of financing was adopted which provides for a "working capital fund" of $1,000,000 to be used for making up deficits in the church fall below budget requirements. The plan provides that no more than 25 per cent of the fund can be used in any one fiscal year. This will prevent a sudden drastic curtailment of the church's work in the case of economic depressions, proponents of the plan explained.

As a result of increasing receipts in recent years the church now has a surplus fund of approximately $1,000,000. Receipts above the benevolence allocations in the future are to be allocated on a percentage basis to the various departments of the church.

The church expressed itself as alarmed over the increased circulation of "immoral, sensational, character-destroying comic books among children of all ages." The resolution urged parents to scrutinize more carefully the literature which their children read and to exercise guidance in selecting wholesome literature.

Also approved was a plan for establishing an all-Lutheran post-graduate school of theology. It was pointed out that there is no such school in American now and that many Lutheran students seeking advanced work are attending schools of other denominations.

The church accepted the invitation of Capital University, Columbus, O., for its 1950 convention to be held as part of the school's centennial celebration. Also approved was a plan for a "financial gathering"—amount of goal not set—to be conducted in 1950 for the church's colleges and seminaries, all of which are seeking expansion due to larger enrollment.

It has been estimated that last year the world had 19,000,000 men under arms at a cost of $27 billion.

Last year the Catholic Church had an Army of 287,100 men and women as missionaries in the 558 separate spiritual battlefields throughout the world, fighting to bring peace and salvation to all. The maintenance of this Foreign Army of the Church, at a daily cost of $1 per day would amount to $104,691,550 which in view of the $27 billion a year for military purposes appears to be a mere pittance. Actually the Army of Christ has not the daily wage of $1. Instead of the saying of Napoleon Bonaparte that, "An Army marches on its stomach," one might say of the Army of Christ that "it marches on the grace of God."

Annual meeting of Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Ohio Conference will be held in North Broadway Methodist church, Columbus, Wednesday and Thursday. Delegates from the local church will attend.

Decision Day will be observed in the morning worship for members of the children's department of First Evangelical United Brethren church with the evangelist, L. S. Metzler, assisted by the church school teachers in charge.

TRUTH AND SECURITY

IT IS fortunate that Dwight Eisenhower is a man to whom people will listen with attention and respect. In his inaugural address as president of Columbia University he said some things which have been said many times before, but which nevertheless still need to be heard.

He pledged that under his administration the truth will continue to be taught at Columbia because ignorance is dangerous. He said specifically that such subjects as Communism will be covered fully, because Americans need to know about them.

This policy is not new, and should not be startling. Yet despite our vaunted freedom of speech and thought some Americans seem afraid of ideas with which they do not agree, and the influence of that fear frequently is brought to bear on the educational system. Remember when the study of the German language was petulantly expunged from the curricula of public schools in all part of the country in the first world war? As a result of the same kind of thinking, there is in many places now a resistance to teaching anything about Russia or Communism except that "they are bad." But had more Americans understood the languages and ways of thought of Germany, Japan and Russia in days gone by, they might have caught sight of certain dangers in time to avoid them.

Because of his personal standing, perhaps some will listen to Eisenhower who would not listen to other educators proclaiming the doctrine of unfettered education. He can be of great service in a difficult time as a champion of the idea that truth is a foundation for security.

SOLDIER CANDIDATES

THE ODDS are increasing that President Truman will hold the unexpected record of being the only veteran of World War I to become President. Gov. Dewey was too young to take part in the war, and, considering that the next presidential campaign will be 34 years after the armistice, the same will probably be true of the nominees of 1952. That will be almost the last chance for ex-servicemen of the A. E. F. In 1956 and 1960 their age is likely to bar them from the White House.

No one would have looked for this outcome of the first world war. All other conflicts have produced a crop of Presidents. From 1868, when Grant ran, down to 1908, the year of Taft's first campaign, the Republicans nominated but one man without a military record. That was Blaine in 1884, and he was beaten.

World War II has not done very much in the candidate line either. Only two leaders have received serious attention for the presidency, and both declined flatly. These were Gen. Marshall and Gen. Eisenhower.

Is there a change of attitude on the part of the American public, or is it coincidence?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It is a curious response to the challenges of nearly every era that when man is in the greatest despair, when the hopelessness of fear is most upon him, when others wring their souls in the agony of lost causes, the Jew starts afresh to build.

So it is that Israel comes into existence in a year when nations are being killed off and states are being reduced from sovereignty to satellites. And so it is with Brandeis University, which has just been established in Waltham, Mass.

I attended the ceremonies of the founding of Brandeis university and the inauguration of its first president, Abram Leon Sachar. This is the first wholly secular university founded by Jews in this country to be available for faculty and students without regard to race, color or creed. It follows the great American tradition of the founding of universities by religious sects, as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Notre Dame, Fordham and many others were so established. It differs from some in that no theological school is attached to it, but a broad humanism inevitably prevails in an atmosphere of a continuing tradition.

At a time when universities are worried about their endowments and when some even advocate turning over to Washington politicians the financing and therefore the ultimate control of institutions of higher learning, these Jewish merchants and businessmen of Boston dare to project a new university, purchase a lovely property for a campus, renovate old buildings, erect new ones, gather a faculty and in about a week the first freshman class will be at work. It is an amazing example of the resilience of the human spirit, of courage, of faith, of belief in the future of mankind. They do not give up.

More than 200 American and foreign universities and learned societies sent delegates to the ceremonies and, of course, there was all the pageantry of academic procession and the color of gowns and hoods. But these really mean very little. What was important on this occasion was the contrast with the despair of Paris, the hopelessness of Berlin, the fear of war. After all, nothing that was done on this particular occasion will bear mature fruit until a generation has passed through its halls.

It will be four years before the first class will be graduated. Under present plans, no graduate or technical school will come into existence at Brandeis sooner than five years from now. The young men and women who now enter will not know for a decade whether Brandeis University really gave them something or wasted their time. And so, while the politicians and soldiers are talking of the defeat and even the destruction of civilization, these men are planting seeds for a new forest of learning. They ignore the ephemeral headlines for the permanence of human growth. They do not worry about being bombed out of existence, for they know that man always builds anew.

Louis D. Brandeis represents a complex figure in both American and Jewish life. Born in Louisville, Ky., he studied at Harvard and settled in Boston to practice law.

Care of Spastic Children

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOWADAYS more and more attention is being given by the medical profession to the problems of spastic children, those unfortunate youngsters, who, because of birth injuries or faulty development of the brain, come into the world seriously handicapped.

Some of these little patients have what is known as spastic palsy; and certain muscles are in a state of almost constant movement.

Others have a rigid paralysis of certain muscles. These children often develop deformities because the constant pull of tense contracted muscles is so great that it cannot be counteracted by normal muscle groups. Furthermore, the tendons which attach these abnormal muscles to the bone do not grow as rapidly as the bones.

Careful Study

If these children are to be helped, a careful study must be made to determine the muscles which are spastic; weak and relaxed, or normal.

Braces are often helpful. It must be kept in mind, however, that such braces are used chiefly to control the muscles that are overly strong and not to support the weak muscles. Thus, braces must be especially constructed and fitted with extreme care.

The feet should be bathed daily and perfect-fitting socks should be worn.

If there is a back brace, it is better to have no underclothing between the brace and the skin of the child. The brace should be checked often to make sure that it is properly fitted. If the brace is properly fitted, it may eventually be worn day and night.

Type of Operation

Operations sometimes accomplish a great deal for these children. The manly even-tempered, irritatingly understanding. There are disadvantages, she thought, in being married to a gentleman, who lived by some high code of his own and observed all the rules.

She had worked herself into quite a tizzy when she recalled her refrigerated remark to Sam, "You're displaying very bad taste," she said. Now it struck her forcibly that she must have sounded rather like Alexandria. Perhaps you got that way by osmosis?

She was thirsty, her mouth dry, and she got up and went quietly into the bathroom. But Brad spoke.

"Sam looks blooming."

"Of course." She had just reached for a glass and it eluded her fingertips. It was conceivable that the last straw, metaphorically speaking. She seized the glass and deliberately flung it . . .

"I broke and her tension with it and she began to laugh, leaning against the washbasin, catching a glimpse of herself in the mirror, the flushed face, the overbright eyes. And Brad padded in, saying, "What the devil—did you cut your eye?"

"I overheard what he said to you," Brad told her, "that is, some of it. I couldn't help it."

"I'm sorry," she said. "Please don't be upset. He was just being nasty." She looked at him and tried to smile. "I mind more, if you do," she said.

Brad put his arm around her. "Dope," he said, "there's a thermometer by your bed."

They saw no more of Sam that evening, except passing his table the lifted hand and the crooked, characteristic grin. Mentally, Brad walked cautiously. He had observed a quick disturbance in Gail's face, and had overheard more than he was willing to admit. It would have given him great pleasure to invite Sam Meredith to step outside the big burning stars and there to knock him senseless, among the uncomfortable cacti. But Brad was a reasonable man. He was considerably shorter and lighter than Sam, and neither batted nor boxed. But if he had been seven feet high and suitably proportioned he would not have enhanced himself, he felt, in Gail's opinion, by such a gesture. Do you know a man down—provided you can—because your wife was once in love with him? He repeated the "was" firmly, to himself; or even because he is, comprehensively, still in love with her and due to this condition makes certain observations neither courteous nor kind?

That night, while, as she assumed, Brad slept less than an arm's length away, Gail lay awake and listened to the coyotes holding their maniacal conversation, sounding forlorn and hysterical. She was angry with herself. It was idiotic to experience excitement, terror even, and both curiously pleasurable, because Sam Meredith had made his appearance. Her anger spilled over into a form of illogical exasperation with her husband. He was inhuman.

for Alexandria had not breakfasted publicly for a great many years, and the breakfast room was preferable to the dining room, being smaller and uncommonly sunny. Gail could pour the coffee and pass the toast, after Andrews had departed, and look at Brad, screened behind his newspaper, and feel quite married. But after he had gone to the laboratory, time limped. There was only so much she could do; she couldn't spend all her hours shopping or reading, walking or resting.

TRUTH AND SECURITY

IT IS fortunate that Dwight Eisenhower is a man to whom people will listen with attention and respect. In his inaugural address as president of Columbia University he said some things which have been said many times before, but which nevertheless still need to be heard.

He pledged that under his administration the truth will continue to be taught at Columbia, because ignorance is dangerous. He said specifically that such subjects as Communism will be covered fully, because Americans need to know about them.

This policy is not new, and should not be startling. Yet despite our vaunted freedom of speech and thought some Americans seem afraid of ideas with which they do not agree, and the influence of fear is frequently brought to bear on the educational system. Remember when the study of the German language was petulantly expunged from the curricula of public schools in all part of the country in the first world war? As a result of the same kind of thinking, there is in many places now a resistance to teaching anything about Russia or Communism except that "they are bad." But had more Americans understood the languages and ways of thought of Germany, Japan and Russia in days gone by, they might have caught sight of certain dangers in time to avoid them.

Because of his personal standing, perhaps some will listen to Eisenhower who would not listen to other educators proclaiming the doctrine of unfettered education. He can be of great service in a difficult time as a champion of the idea that truth is a foundation for security.

SOLDIER CANDIDATES

THE ODDS are increasing that President Truman will hold the unexpected record of being the only veteran of World War I to become President. Gov. Dewey was too young to take part in the war, and, considering that the next presidential campaign will be 34 years after the armistice, the same will probably be true of the nominees of 1952. That will be almost the last chance for ex-servicemen of the A. E. F. In 1956 and 1960 their age is likely to bar them from the White House.

No one would have looked for this outcome of the first world war. All other conflicts have produced a crop of Presidents. From 1868, when Grant ran, down to 1908, the year of Taft's first campaign, the Republicans nominated but one man without a military record. That was Blaine in 1884, and he was beaten.

World War II has not done very much in the candidate line either. Only two leaders have received serious attention for the presidency, and both declined flatly. These were Gen. Marshall and Gen. Eisenhower.

Is there a change of attitude on the part of the American public, or is it coincidence?

From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another grand morning and soon to have assurance of Charlie Carter, the local weather bureau representative, that the order already is in for fair skies next week during Pumpkin Show. Hope he is right. Lancaster certainly is being favored for its fair. Saw John Hummel on his way over and heard Don Henkle enthuse about the nighttime show that is being staged before the grandstand. Many of the local horse fan is attending the afternoon races.

The Pumpkin Show will be official again this year and bigger and better than ever. Jim Swearingen is back and anxiously awaiting the opening moment. Attended all of them until recent years when sickness overcame him. Now on the mend and plans to do a lot of circulating next week.

Met up with Jack Pyle, the former auto agency head who gave it up to become a farmer. Told me his wife had been critical of his non-shaven appearance, but that had to come to town in a hurry. Jack, I won't give her a chance to Listen Pa and Ma: Those kids of yours are starting their Halloween too early. The police don't like it and unless you take a stand you may have to bail Junior out of police clutches one of these nights. Bugs told me. And he was ahead.

And very next Wendell Turner walked in and asked me how to make a still, or rather a contrivance that would appear to be one. Needed to dress up the Pumpkin Jack stand at the fete next week. And I told him, for I have seen them for many years, both active in the hills of Kentucky, the West, even in Ohio, and the de-commissioned ones taken in federal and state raids.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

It is a curious response to the challenges of nearly every era that when man is in the greatest despair, when the hopelessness of fear is most upon him, when others wring their souls in the agony of lost causes, the Jew starts afresh to build.

So it is that Israel comes into existence in a year when nations are being killed off and states are being reduced from sovereignty to satellites. And so it is with Brandeis University, which has just been established in Waltham, Mass.

I attended the ceremonies of the founding of Brandeis university and the inauguration of its first president, Abram Leon Sachar. This is the first wholly secular university founded by Jews in this country to be available for faculty and students without regard to race, color or creed. It follows the great American tradition of the founding of universities by religious sects, as Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Notre Dame, Fordham and many others were so established. It differs from some in that no theological school is attached to it, but a broad humanism inevitably prevails in an atmosphere of a continuing tradition.

At a time when universities are worried about their endowments and when some even advocate turning over to Washington politicians the financing and therefore the ultimate control of institutions of higher learning, these Jewish merchants and businessmen of Boston dare to project a new university, purchase a lovely property for a campus, renovate old buildings, erect new ones, gather a faculty and in about a week the first freshman class will be at work. It is an amazing example of the resilience of the human spirit, of courage, of faith, of belief in the future of mankind. They do not give up.

More than 200 American and foreign universities and learned societies sent delegates to the ceremonies and, of course, there was all the pageantry of academic procession and the color of gowns and hoods. But these really mean very little. What was important on this occasion was the contrast with the despair of Paris, the hopelessness of Berlin, the fear of war. After all, nothing that was done on this particular occasion will bear mature fruit until a generation has passed through its halls.

It will be four years before the first class will be graduated. Under present plans, no graduate or technical school will come into existence at Brandeis sooner than five years from now. The young men and women who now enter will not know for a decade whether Brandeis University really gave them something or wasted their time. And so, while the politicians and soldiers are talking of the defeat and even the destruction of civilization, these men are planting seeds for a new forest of learning. They ignore the ephemeral headlines for the permanence of human growth. They do not worry about being bombed out of existence, for they know that man always builds anew.

Louis D. Brandeis represents a complex figure in both American and Jewish life. Born in Louisville, Ky., he studied at Harvard and settled in Boston to practice law.

Care of Spastic Children

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOWADAYS more and more attention is being given by the medical profession to the problems of spastic children, those unfortunate youngsters, who, because of birth injuries or faulty development of the brain, come into the world seriously handicapped.

Some of these little patients have what is known as spastic palsy; and certain muscles are in a state of almost constant movement.

Others have a rigid paralysis of certain muscles. These children often develop deformities because the constant pull of tense contracted muscles is so great that it cannot be counteracted by normal muscle groups. Furthermore, the tendons which attach these abnormal muscles to the bone do not grow as rapidly as the bones.

Careful Study

If these children are to be helped, a careful study must be made to determine the muscles which are spastic; weak and relaxed, or normal.

Braces are often helpful. It must be kept in mind, however, that such braces are used chiefly to control the muscles that are overly strong and not to support the weak muscles. Thus, braces must be especially constructed and fitted with extreme care.

The feet should be bathed daily and perfect-fitting socks should be worn.

If there is a back brace, it is better to have no underclothing between the brace and the skin of the child. The brace should be checked often to make sure that it is properly fitted. If the brace is properly fitted, it may eventually be worn day and night.

Type of Operation

Operations sometimes accomplish a great deal for these children. The type of operation which may be of value, however, can only be decided by an orthopedic specialist, after he has made a careful study of the condition. It is often wise to continue the use of braces after an operation, to prevent the recurrence of deformities.

The drug, known as prostigmine, may be helpful to some of these children, since it relaxes muscle spasms.

Difficulty Eating

Many children with spastic palsy have difficulty in eating and so suffer from vitamin and other deficiencies. Their diet must be well balanced so as to include all of the necessary food parts. Since some of these children expend more energy than normal children, their food intake must be greater. It is suggested that they be given Vitamin B-complex, since this compound not only stimulates the appetite but also relieves constipation. Vitamin B6, or pyridoxine given with Vitamin E, has been used for flabbiness and muscle weakness. Attention to these matters may be of great help to the child with spastic paralysis.

However, one of the most important factors in the management of spastic children is to give them the opportunity to play with other children. Frequently, the best way to accomplish this is to have them play with each other in summer camps and in certain hospitals and clinics and that are engaged in this particular phase of child care.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. B.: What can be done for sprained feet?

Answer: Excessive perspiration of the feet sometimes is due to wearing the wrong kind of stockings and shoes.

The use of a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride, dabbed on the feet every two or three days, will remedy the condition.

Plant Bush Fruits This Fall

DID YOU have good luck with your Freedom garden vegetables this season? If you did perhaps you want to expand the garden and grow bush fruits, since any location and soil that has grown good vegetables can grow fruits.

Of the bush fruits currants are the most suitable for the home garden. They also have considerable ornamental value. They can often be used as an informal hedge on the property line to divide the flower and vegetable garden.

Gooseberries also have a place in the Freedom garden which contains bush fruits. They may be grown the same as currants. An exceptionally good variety is named Downing.

It is advisable to plant currants and gooseberries in the fall,

Household Hints

Removing paint from window glass is not difficult. Soften the paint spots with turpentine or a commercial paint remover, and scrape off with an old knife or the edge of a coin.

To test eggs for freshness: Carefully slip the eggs, one at a time, into a big pan of cold water. If fresh, the egg will at once sink to the bottom. If it sways about, but still remains under water, it is not strictly fresh but can be used for cooking. If it floats on the top, it is a bad egg!

Sunshine is a natural bleach, and clothes dried out of doors usually need no other. Extra moisture left in clothes after the final rinsing increases the bleaching action of the sun.

A length of rubber hose, cut down the middle, and fastened to the teeth of a saw when it is not in use, is good insurance that the teeth will not be bent and broken the next time it is to be used.

If you are storing two flavors of ice cream in the refrigerator, put them into the freezing tray in a "marbled" effect; coffee and chocolate ice cream are delicious put together in this way and strawberry and vanilla make another good combination.

Something different is ham hash. Use cooked ham and cubed cooked sweet potatoe. Pan-fry the hash lightly in a small amount of fat. Add diced celery, if you like, for texture.

The success of lamb stew depends on presentation as well as cooking. Use deep soup plates; put the meat and vegetables in first; top with 2 dumplings and a little minced parsley. Garnish with colorful vegetables around the edge or use cooked fresh or canned peas.

If you are using a cooking utensil over an open flame at an outdoor picnic or supper, rub the outside with a wet cake of soap. Soot which collects on it will be more easily removed with an old paper after coating with straw manure.

There are three types of currants, the red, the white and the black. The red is the most popular for home gardens. The black currant is banned in most states because it is an alternate host of the destructive pine blaster-rust disease.

Miss America Urges Teen-Agers Have Hobby

By BEATRICE SHOPP

Miss America Of 1948

ATLANTIC CITY, I helped to organize a marimba band, for which I did most of the arranging.

While in school, most of my extra-curricular activities centered around music. I played in the band—the glockenspiel in the marching band, and my vibraphone in the concert band.

Maybe I was too much of a "joiner" in high school, but I think you get more from your school days that way.

Besides the band, I also belonged to the glee club, the choruses, the Spanish club, the service club and the Tri Y, a club sponsored by YWCA.

I'm not saying that you have to have a hobby to have fun in high school, but it almost always helps.

Scrapbooks are fun to keep, but make sure you have plenty of desk or closet space in which to keep them. One can mushroom into 100.

There was a time when I collected match folders, too, but I finally gave that up.

Then there was my collection of miniature bottles, and the time I helped father add to his miniature elephant collection.

Most of my hobbies, with the exception of the scrapbooks, had to be abandoned when I began to learn my music.

Music is the most important part of my life right now.

I began learning the piano, switched to the marimba and finally settled on the vibraphone.

Of course, I still play the piano. I make all of my own musical arrangements and have done some composing for my high school classes.

Circleville Residents Requested To Display Pumpkins Next Week

Garden Clubs Back Campaign

The public has been requested to join the two local Garden Clubs in their civic project by placing pumpkins on doorsteps and porches next week during the Pumpkin Show to lend atmosphere to the annual event.

This project, to carry out the theme of the county's harvest of the crops and general festive occasion, is being sponsored by Circleville and Pickaway Garden Clubs. Mrs. Orion King is civic chairman of the Circleville Club and Mrs. A. J. Lyle, chairman of the civic group of the Pickaway Club.

The annual event marks the reunion of old friendships and relationships, with homes being opened for numerous informal gatherings.

Many persons return to their hometowns at this time of the year to attend the Pumpkin Show and view its many displays of county produce.

Radcliffs Host To Club Meet

Judge and Mrs. William D. Radcliff entertained the Circleville Club at a cooperative supper at their Williamsport home.

Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Wilder, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard Raper, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Workman, Mr. and Mrs. James Flannagan and Miss Marjorie Leist of Columbus. Mr. and Mrs. Howard White of the Laurelville community and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Williamsport.

Plant Bush Fruits This Fall

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed by Central Press Association

DID YOU have good luck with your Freedom garden vegetables this season? If you did perhaps you want to expand the garden and grow bush fruits, since any location and soil that has grown good vegetables can grow fruits.

The bush fruits currants are the most suitable for the home garden. They also have considerable ornamental value. They can often be used as an informal hedge on the property line to divide the flower and vegetable garden.

Gooseberries also have a place in the Freedom garden which contains bush fruits. They may be grown the same as currants. An exceptionally good variety is named Downing.

It is advisable to plant currants and gooseberries in the fall.

Household Hints

Removing paint from window glass is not difficult. Soften the paint spots with turpentine or a commercial paint remover, and scrape off with an old knife or the edge of a coin.

To test eggs for freshness: Carefully slip the eggs, one at a time, into a big pan of cold water. If fresh, the egg will at once sink to the bottom. If it sways about, but still remains under water, it is not strictly fresh but can be used for cooking. If it floats on the top, it is a bad egg!

Sunshine is a natural bleach, and clothes dried out of doors usually need no other. Extra moisture left in clothes after the final rinsing increases the bleaching action of the sun.

A length of rubber hose, cut down the middle, and fastened to the teeth of a saw when it is not in use, is good insurance that the teeth will not be bent and broken the next time it is to be used.

If you are storing two flavors of ice cream in the refrigerator, put them into the freezing tray in a "marbled" effect; coffee and chocolate ice cream are delicious put together in this way and strawberry and vanilla make another good combination.

Something different is ham hash. Use cooked ham and cubed cooked sweet potatoes. Pan-fry the hash lightly in a small amount of fat. Add diced celery, if you like, for texture.

The success of lamb stew depends on presentation as well as cooking. Use deep soup plates; put the meat and vegetables in first; top with 2 dumplings and a little minced parsley. Garnish with colorful vegetables around the edge or use cooked fresh or canned peas.

If you are using a cooking utensil over an open flame at an outdoor picnic or supper, rub the outside with a wet cake of soap. Soot which collects on it will be more easily removed with an old paper after coating with soap.

There are three types of currant, the red, the white and the black. The red is the most popular for home gardens. The black currant is banned in most states because it is an alternate host of the destructive pine blister-rust disease.

It you don't have a hobby, they're easily started.

My oldest collection was started for me by my parents many years before I was hobby-conscious.

It began with a baby book which the folks started after my birth, Aug. 17, 1930.

The baby book overflowed into another volume and today, I have several scrapbooks packed with clippings and snapshots about the doings of my friends and myself.

Scrapbooks are fun to keep, but make sure you have plenty of desk or closet space in which to keep them. One can mushroom into 100.

There was a time when I collected match folders, too, but I finally gave that up.

Then there was my collection of miniature bottles, and the time I helped father add to his miniature elephant collection.

Circleville Nabs Fifth Win; Newcomerstown Falls, 32-0

Circleville Tiger football team lambasted Newcomerstown 32-0 Friday night to extend its string of victories to five straight.

Harold "Sandy" Hill, ace leather taker for the Red and Black, again proved his capabilities by scoring four of the five tallies and consistently ripping off substantial chunks of yardage.

Circleville went wild in the initial period, posting three tallies in first nine minutes of play.

Second and third periods found Tiger team unable to score on the aroused Newcomerstowners, but the Red and Black offensive again began clicking in the last period, netting the remaining two markers.

First score in the contest came on only nine plays, while the second consumed 10 and the third took eight.

CIRCLEVILLE won the toss from Newcomerstown and elected to receive. The opening boot was taken on the 20-yard line by Right Halfback Charles Sabine, who returned it to his 43-yard line.

Sabine gained a first down on an off-tackle play on the first play of the game, followed by another first down gained when Hill uncorked a 20-yard pass to Dean Smallwood, advancing the ball to the Newcomerstown 27-yard marker.

Sabine again lugged the ball into the line on the next play, netting about a yard, Hill gained four on a center play and chalked up another first down on an 11-yard end sweep.

Hill posted still another first down on the following play, ripping off 11 yards on a right end sweep, advancing the oval to the three-yard-line.

Sabine carried the ball to the two-yard-stripe on the next play, but Junior Pfeifer was stopped cold on the second attempt to break through.

Hill scored the first touchdown of the game on the following play, sweeping his left end to tally. He converted the extra point with a placement, giving the Tigers a 7-0 edge.

Newcomerstown received a first down on its first series of plays following the Circleville kickoff by virtue of a 15-yard clipping penalty, but were forced to punt to the Circleville 31.

HILL HIT the line for four yards on the first Tiger play, and Sabine took a off-tackle through right tackle slot to execute a brilliant piece of running to cross the Newcomerstown goal, 65 yards down field. At least four tacklers hit the runner, but Sabine shrugged the m off, reversed his field and scored. The Tigers led 13-0 as the placement failed.

Climaxing the big first period came another brilliant run by Hill on the eighth play following the Tiger kickoff.

Sandy set up his own tally by intercepting a pass on his 44-yard-marker and then heaving a 10-yard pass to Smallwood. Sabine hit the line twice for eight yards, and then Hill smashed through line, broke into the clear and raced 38 yards for the TD.

He converted by placement and the Tigers led 20-0.

The second and third periods of the game were colorless from spectator standpoint, neither team threatening seriously, content to slug it out near midfield.

Last quarter of play was another story, however, when tension mounted and several tiffs arose on the field between players.

Cooler heads on the Tiger squad were immune to the excitement, however, and while two of the Red and Blackers took treks to the benches at official request the remainder of the team advanced the ball to within scoring distance.

HILL, SPARKPLUG of the advance, made his third trip into pay dirt midway through the final frame on another sparkling run, this time an off tackle slash good for the 40 yards into Newcomerstown end zone. Conversion placement attempt failed, and the Red and Black led 26-0.

Circleville's kickoff was taken on the Newcomerstown 35, but four plays failed to net the hosts a first down. The Tigers took over on their own 41 and Hill tossed another pass to Smallwood good for 30 yards. Smallwood snatched the ball on the right side of the field and was forced out of bounds.

Here was the most baffling of all hidden ball tricks. While officials were frantically trying to separate overheated players, a spectator calmly carted off the white game ball. Time was called while Newcomerstown coach produced a second ball.

The next three Circleville plays bore no fruit as the game was bore the last minute of play, but a fourth down Tom Eveland-to-Lowell Thomas passed advanced the ball to within the Newcomerstown 15-yard-line.

Hill passed five yards to Bob McAlister, carried to the one-yard line with only 20 seconds of play left, and scored the final touchdown on an end sweep two seconds before the final gun.

Hill's attempted pass conversion was incomplete and the final score stood at Circleville 32, Newcomerstown 0.

Circleville was never forced to punt in the contest, and the host aggregation failed to advance the ball within the Red and Black 15-yard line.

He converted by placement and the Tigers led 20-0.

50,000 Expected To See Browns Battle Bill '11'

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 — Now that the World Series is a thing of the past and the good people of Cleveland have come back down to earth, the sports spotlight turns to the city's other champions—the Browns.

Despite the fact that the the Browns season ended only five days ago, the Browns will complete the first half of their All-America Football Conference season tomorrow when they collide with the Buffalo Bills in Municipal Stadium. Some 50,000 fans are expected to be on hand.

LAVELLI, however, has been working out with the club all week and probably will see some action tomorrow, especially if the run of the battle isn't going too well against the Bills.

Regardless of injuries, the Browns still have managed to outscore their opponents, which indicates that their victims haven't been able to take many liberties with the Cleveland defense.

And the defending kings have been clicking although at various stages in the game they have been without the services of their key offensive stars.

Dante Lavelli has been on the shelf all season with broken leg; Edgar Jones has been in and out of the lineup with rib injuries; Marion Motley got off to a slow start because of a back ailment and Otto Graham has been nursing a sprained hand all season.

LAVELLI, however, has been working out with the club all week and probably will see some action tomorrow, especially if the run of the battle isn't going too well against the Bills.

Regardless of injuries, the Browns still have managed to outscore their opponents, which indicates that their victims haven't been able to take many liberties with the Cleveland defense.

Coach Paul Brown and his assistants have assembled a defensive unit which has allowed opponents only 71 points, lowest in the league.

Never has the Brown pass defense been taken apart and only the Bills were able to gain through the line with any consistency, piling up 216 yards.

The AAC champs have been working all week in preparation for tomorrow's tilt, which Assistant Coach Johnny Brickle's words will not be a pushover.

"They're a good scoring team and the type that can make an interesting afternoon for any club in the league," Brickle's

In Francis' many jaunts around the county says he has found the quakers in abundance on several of the ponds and streams, although the birds shy away from the river between Circleville and Columbus.

Francis said the stretch of river from here to the capital is in poor shape and the ducks won't set down on it. However, the stretch of river between Circleville and Chillicothe is in relatively good condition and many ducks have been seen there.

The protector pointed out that a little bad weather between now and Oct. 29, opening day, probably would bring down the quakers in large quantities.

LEADING the Bills are Chet Mutry, a Clevelander, who has carried the ball 74 times for 361 yards, and George Ratterman, the Bills' quarterback who, despite the fact that he is one of the league's best passers, was demoted to second string earlier this week.

Although Buffalo Coach Red Dawson has moved Jim Still into the signal-calling position, the Browns fully expect that Ratterman will be on the firing line tomorrow.

Boxer Fails Pass Ring Physical

CHICAGO, Oct. 16 — Bobby McQuillan, Port Huron, Mich., lightweight, faced a possible lifetime ban from Illinois rings today.

Dr. John J. Drammis, Illinois state athletic commission physician, said McQuillan had a heart condition which probably will bar him from any Illinois fights.

The 25-year-old Negro was refused permission after a cardiograph test to go through with his scheduled 10-round against Doll Rafferty of Milwaukee in Chicago's Marigold Gardens Monday.

Missouri '11 Wins Its 36th

MARSHALL, Mo., Oct. 16 — Missouri Valley College won its 36th consecutive victory here last night by edging Central College, 7 to 6.

Earl Delarco's failure to convert after Central's second-quarter touchdown cost the Eagles their chance to snap the impressive win string rung up by the Missouri Valley eleven under Coach Volney Ashford.

Harvest Time Brings Old Problem: Corn Storage Space

Grain Value Being Lost By Farmers

Experts Offer Helpful Hints

With the nation's record grain crop backing up for want of transportation to market, Pickaway County farmers this year are faced with a growing storage problem. But that problem is not new.

From the time man first gathered the seeded spikes of the early Indian maize, corn storage has been a constant problem. The same elements of nature which grow crops tends to destroy them.

Farm specialists have spent millions of dollars attempting to design storage buildings to keep the corn at the peak of condition. But despite the scientific advances of man, corn storage problems remain unsolved.

According to agricultural experts, more than 10 percent of the value of all grain produced in this country is lost annually by spoilage, down-grading and vermin between the time it is harvested and sold or fed.

A CROP specialist in the corn belt said about 90 percent of the corn raised in his state was potentially No. 1 corn at maturity, yet most farmers are lucky to get No. 3 even in best storage places.

Modern techniques with old equipment and specialized use of new equipment are leading to new fields of corn preservation which virtually has stopped grain losses through deterioration.

Helpful hints offered farmers by grain experts include:

Remove excess grain moisture by mechanically conditioning or by taking advantage of natural wind pressure to move air through the grain to dry it.

Corn that has naturally dried down to at least 20 percent moisture in the field can be cribbed in reasonable safety if it has been husked fairly clean and is free of too much dirt and shelled corn.

In storage, the crib should have a good floor and roof and for best results should not be over six feet in width. Cribs over six-feet wide should have additional ventilation installed.

Openings in the side wall should not be more than 15 percent of the side. A larger opening permits additional rain and snow to enter and cause greater loss to the quality of the corn.

Ike Raps Federal School Aid Ties

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 16—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower maintained that he will oppose federal aid to higher education "as long as one single iota of federal control comes with it."

The newly-installed president of Columbia university spoke at the 82nd convocation of the University of the State of New York at which he was presented with an honorary doctorate of law. He said:

"I believe that the federal government has no right to take tax money out of our pockets and give it back to us without some form of supervision."

Pickaway Blood Bank Program To Be Detailed In Public Hearing

Pickaway County's blood bank program will be aired in a public meeting Oct. 28, with two American Red Cross officials slated to attend.

Donald M. Jones, ARC field representative, and Roy Hersey, ARC state relations officer, will be here to stress the needs of a voluntary blood donation program for Pickaway County.

Probe Starts On Incident

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16—Authorities are investigating today the dropping of a water tumbler which crashed into the street just in front of President Truman's car during his visit to Indianapolis.

The glass shattered as it struck the pavement between the Secret Service lead car and the chief executive's automobile which was following.

Police believe the tumbler was knocked out of someone's hand and was not thrown when the President passed on his way to his train last night from the World War Memorial where he delivered a major address.

Nylon Stocking Thug Is Sought

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16—Suburban East Cleveland police today were seeking a "nylon stocking" gunman and a companion who escaped with $8,140 from an east side bar.

The two gunmen scooped up the cash from the bar after forcing eight persons into a lavatory. They were believed to have escaped in a waiting automobile, although no one saw them leave.

While one of the gunmen produced employees and customers with his revolver, the other, his face shrouded with a dark nylon stocking, looted cash drawers of bills and coins.

Hummel Ignores Attorney's Rule On Poll Marks

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16—Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel has ignored an attorney general's opinion which he had requested in issuing "final instructions" to election boards for the counting of presidential ballots in the Nov. 2 election.

Heading his instruction sheet "Important—Read Carefully," Hummel asserted that:

1. Presidential ballots marked with an "X" for the Democratic or Republican candidates and also marked for one or more of the 25 independent candidates for presidential electors shall be declared invalid.

2—Ballots "Xed" in the shaded space at the top of the indented column and also with an "X" in the circular space at the top of the Democratic or Republican columns shall be counted as a vote for the Democratic or Republican candidate.

3.—A ballot bearing any other marks other than "X" shall be invalid.

Hummel thus went counter to the opinion of Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins who under the law is his official legal advisor.

Regional blood center will be established the latter part of this month or in November in Columbus and soon after a Bloodmobile will make its first visit here.

Some 34 counties within a 70-mile radius of Columbus are expected to participate in the blood bank program, Mary E. Lutz, executive secretary of the local ARC chapter revealed.

Heading up the plan here are Karl Johnson, program chairman, and Dr. H. D. Jackson, chairman of the medical advisory committee. These two groups are cooperating with the ARC board of directors.

Urgency of the blood bank was underlined in a recent disclosure that the present ARC supply of blood will be exhausted in January. The plan is to make blood free to anyone in the county who needs it.

It is estimated for each general hospital bed in the country five pints of blood will be needed each year, in addition to one pint for each bed in tuberculosis and neuropsychiatric hospitals.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16—James P. Murphy, 47-year-old cook, began a life sentence today for murdering the widow who jilted him.

Harvest Time Brings Old Problem: Corn Storage Space

Grain Value Being Lost By Farmers

Experts Offer Helpful Hints

With the nation's record grain crop backing up for want of transportation to market, Pickaway County farmers this year are faced with a growing storage problem. But that problem is not new.

From the time man first gathered the seeded spikes of the early Indian maize, corn storage has been a constant problem. The same element's nature which grows crops tends to destroy them.

Farm specialists have spent millions of dollars attempting to design storage buildings to keep the corn at the peak of condition. But despite the scientific advances of man, corn storage problems remain unsolved.

According to agricultural experts, more than 10 percent of the value of all grain produced in this country is lost annually by spoilage, down-grading and vermin between the time it is harvested and sold or fed.

A CROP specialist in the corn belt said about 90 percent of the corn raised in his state was potentially No. 1 corn at maturity, yet most farmers are lucky to get No. 3 even in best storage places.

Modern techniques with old equipment and specialized use of new equipment are leading to new fields of corn preservation which virtually has stopped grain losses through deterioration.

Helpful hints offered farmers by grain experts include:

Remove excess grain moisture by mechanically conditioning or by taking advantage of natural wind pressure to move air through the grain to dry it.

Corn that has naturally dried down to at least 20 percent moisture in the field can be cribbed in reasonable safety if it has been husked fairly clean and is free of too much dirt and shelled corn.

In storage, the crib should have a good floor and roof and for best results should not be over six feet in width. Cribs over six-feet wide should have additional ventilation installed.

Openings in the side wall should not be more than 15 percent of the side. A larger opening permits additional rain and snow to enter and cause greater loss to the quality of the corn.

Ike Raps Federal School Aid Ties

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 16—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower maintained today that he will oppose federal aid to higher education "as long as one single iota of federal control comes with it."

The newly-installed president of Columbia university spoke at the 82nd convocation of the University of the State of New York at which he was presented with an honorary doctorate of law. He said:

"I believe that the federal government has no right to take tax money out of our pockets and give it back to us without some form of supervision."

Probe Starts On Incident

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 16—Authorities are investigating today the dropping of a water tumbler which crashed into the street just in front of President Truman's car during his visit to Indianapolis.

The glass shattered as it struck the pavement between the Secret Service lead car and the chief executive's automobile which was following.

Police believe the tumbler was knocked out of someone's hand and was not thrown when the President passed on his way to his train last night from the World War Memorial where he delivered a major address.

Nylon Stocking Thug Is Sought

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16—Suburban East Cleveland police today were seeking a "nylon stocking" gunman and a companion who escaped with $8,140 from an east side bar.

The two gunmen scooped up the cash from the bar after forcing eight persons into a lavatory. They were believed to have escaped in a waiting automobile, although no one saw them leave.

While one of the gunmen prodded employees and customers with his revolver, the other, his face shrouded with a dark nylon stocking, looted cash drawers of bills and coins.

Hummel Ignores Attorney's Rule On Poll Marks

COLUMBUS, Oct. 16—Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel has ignored an attorney general's opinion which he had requested in issuing "final instructions" to election boards for the counting of presidential ballots in the Nov. 2 election.

Heading his instruction sheet "Important—Read Carefully," Hummel asserted that:

1. Presidential ballots marked with an "X" for the Democratic or Republican candidates and also marked for one or more of the 25 independent candidates for presidential electors shall be declared invalid.

2. Ballots "Xed" in the shaded space at the top of the indendent column and also with an "X" in the circular space at the top of the Democratic or Republican columns shall be counted as a vote for the Democratic or Republican candidate.

3. A ballot bearing any other marks other than "X" shall be invalid.

Hummel thus went counter to the opinion of Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins who under the law is his official legal advisor.
